ABOUT ME

I'm passionate about creating content experiences that help IT Pros achieve more with technology. I specialize in taking otherwise dead and useless guides and online help content and bringing them back to life by making them interactive, scenario based, and usable again.

About Me

I've been in IT for 25 years, starting in support and moving to network system administration. However, for the past 20 years, I've been a Technical Writer taking the guesswork out of complex technical content. I've also written around lousy user interface design through this time, so I've learned how to uncover and solve user experience (UX) challenges.

Achievements

- Built an online help system using the Docusaurus docs-as-code framework for a tech security startup.
- Wrote shell scripts to automate OpenAPI content publishing for Extreme Networks.
- Built a custom authoring environment in MadCap Flare and converted legacy content for several large corporations, maximizing content reuse and to reducing the cost of creating, managing, and publishing content.
